February 26: First look: new INSATIABLE vampire short

Scott Perry, the man behind the Colonial's Crypt horror website, sent along the first exclusive photo at left and some info on his short chiller INSATIABLE (no relation to the recent feature of the same title), which he recently wrapped on New Jersey locations. THE BLOOD SHED's Mike Lane and Zoë Daelman Chandra star as a serial killer who has an obsession with vampires and his initially unsuspecting wife, who begins to discover her husband's dark side. The cast also includes BARRICADE's Raine Brown (pictured), Jessie May Laumann, Sandra Schaller and Danielle (THE TENEMENT) Russo; BLOOD SHED writer/director Alan Rowe Kelly handled the makeup, Henry (VINDICATION) Boriello created the FX and Fango scribe Jeremiah Kipp, fresh off I SELL THE DEAD, was assistant director.

One challenge Perry set for himself with INSATIABLE was telling his story with no dialogue. "It's harder for actors to convey emotions without words, and it's also more difficult to tell a story with that approach," he tells Fango. "With Derek [Lane] immersed in the Gothic world of vampires, he's doing what he believes is how a vampire would act."

According to the filmmaker, his ensemble rose to the occasion. "Mike, Zoë and Raine are true professionals, and it was a tremendous honor to have them involved in this production. I would work with all of them again in a heartbeat, as well as the dedicated crew. We shot over five very long, very fun days, and when you work with a team that brings more than 100 percent to a project, it makes for a completely rewarding experience."

Perry plans to have a teaser ready this spring and to complete INSATIABLE this summer. For more info, check out the Crypt website linked above and the movie's MySpace page here. —Michael Gingold
